

Vice President Report

Adam Warren

Dan asked me to write a little bit about myself and why I feel that I can be a helpful contributor to the CTPHA. Like most of you, I have been infatuated with the outdoors my entire life. My childhood days were spent dreaming of fishing and hunting adventures. I grew up as a dryland bean farmers son in Dove Creek, Colorado. After graduating high school, I farmed for 7 years before I decided there was more to life than feeding the world for just enough money to starve to death. I went to college and received a bachelor's degree in Wildlife Biology. I found work after that in the oilfield and parlayed that into a career in the oil and gas field. Unlike most trappers, trapping was something I picked up as an adult. I discovered trapping during one of my sets of days off while working on a drilling rig. I bought 3 live traps in 2009 caught my first bobcat on the 9th day and I was hooked for life! I have a strong passion for the outdoors and strive to maintain these opportunities for future generations. I have a 10 year old son that is my trapping partner and sidekick in nearly all my outdoor endeavors. I feel personally responsible for maintaining the hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges for him and the next generation.
